NOON REPORTS.

Butler Booms.

BOSTON, August 30.—In a speech at Faneuil Hall Saturday night Gen. Butler declared that he is not nor should be a candidate for any office, elective or appointive, at this election or under the incoming administration. He explained his present position as caused by recreancy of the Republican administration to the platform of 1876 and their desertion of the negro in the South, after promising to protect him. And he says: "Now then it is because I am a friend of the negro; it is because I desire to stand for him; it is because I desire to do all that in me lies to aid him in the difficult position in which he is placed by the attainment so unprecedented of his citizenship, that I now propose to act with the Democratic party. That at least can protect him and I believe they will do so. The industrial condition of the South shows that the negro is necessary as a laborer, must be protected, and will be as soon as the political antagonisms die out. I freely confess to you that I desire to be in such relations of political kindness and courtesy with the Democratic party that I may be permitted to point out on behalf of the colored men what I deem would be for the best interests of all, and what I doubt not will be their wish to do in his behalf." General Butler attacked the claim of Republicans that the present prosperity of the country is due to their administration. He claimed that the prosperity was the act of God and that the bankrupt condition of business depression a few years ago was caused by the resumption act. The Republicans have legislated the American flag off the ocean and have negotiated us out of all our fishery rights in Northern seas. The Republican party in the long lease of power has become corrupt and there can be no hope of change under Garfield. The General ingenuously vindicated the memory of Oakes Ames, aspersed in defence of the Republican candidate. The meeting was very largely attended and the General loudly applauded.

Items in Noon Telegrams.

Out in Nicholasville, Ky., they were trying Jas. H. Arnold for murder. The State's Attorney was making his argument on Saturday, when Ike Arnold thought to stop the flow of his denunciation of his brother by putting a pistol to the lawyer's head. Ike was fined $1,000 and sent to jail for a year. James Arnold was acquitted.

In half hour's prize fight at Red Bank, N. J., George Weed was severely used up by John Splaner, but fell down on Splaner and broke his arm twice.

St. Julien is to trot at Minneapolis on September 6, against his own time, the best on record, for $5,000.

F. D. Jordan, of Savannah, was drowned in the surf at Tybee Island on Sunday.

Gen. Roberts marched from Khelat-Ghilzai on the 25th for the relief of Candahar. He expected to arrive to-day and attack Ayoob Khan to-morrow.

An oil tank at Bradford, Pa., was struck by lightning. Loss $40,000.

NIGHT REPORTS.

General Clingman as an Inventor.

WASHINGTON, August 30.—An appeal has been filed in the District Supreme Court by ex-Senator Thos. L. Clingman of Asheville, N. C., against the decision of the Commissioner of Patents refusing him a patent for an improvement in electric lights. The device sought to be patented is a sphere of zirconia combined with aluminium magnesia, lime or silica, and glazed with pure zirconia; this is sustained by two platinum wires and gives light by its resistance to the electric fluid and consequent incandescence, it being infusible and incombustible. The reasons of examiners at put at office for refusing patent were, that the claim conflicts with a patent issued to T. A. Edison, September 16th, 1879, for light from incandescent sciencia, and another to one Jenkins, March 4th, 1879, for platinum supports, etc. The case has been placed on calendar for the September term of the court.

The Sick Man Dying.

LONDON, August 30.—The Powers are considering a rejoinder to the Porte's last note about Montenegro, and in the meantime they have ordered a number of men of war to rendezvous at Ragusa. The Powers have informed the Porte that the decision of the Berlin conference on the Greek question cannot be reopened, and have also presented a note to the Porte urging reform in Armenia. The Porte is preparing a fresh note to the Powers making a distinct offer respecting the cession of territory to Greece, declaring in firm language the impossibility of going further, and throwing upon the Powers the responsibility for the consequences of the rejection of this offer.

France's Doings.

PARIS, August 30.—The Government, as soon as the Chambers resume, will introduce a bill for the sale of that portion of Crown jewels not considered of artistic value but estimated to be worth 7,500,000 francs; the proceeds of the sale to be devoted to the purchase of works of art.

Since the beginning of the year there have been 140 duels in France.

Pere Hyacinthe, on Saturday, solemnized the marriage of the Abbe Laine, until recently the Priest of the Diocese of Mons, with a Madam Wachuz. Pere Hyacinthe warned them that they must be prepared to encounter persecution.

British Vengeance at Hand.

LONDON, August 30.—The Times' Quetta dispatch yesterday says the news from Candahar is to the 26th inst. When Ayoob Khan learned of Gen. Roberts' approach he abandoned the investment of Candahar and took a position with his whole force on the Argandob river. Gen. Phayre's advance has occupied Gatai. Gen. Phayre himself will march for Candahar to-night. The troops are pushing forward now with marvellous rapidity.

Brooklyn Lawyer Murdered.

NEW YORK, August 30.—The murder yesterday by stabbing of Lawyer Geo. C. Harward has caused quite a sensation in Brooklyn. The police have arrested Walter J. Best and Joseph A. Hurley on a suspicion of being concerned in the tragedy, and are now on the track of others. The men arrested claim to know nothing of the murder. The Brooklyn Bar will hold a meeting to express their sorrow at the death of Mr. Harward.

The News in the Night Telegrams.

An excursion train was run into by the express train on the Housatonic Road yesterday. Both engineers were fatally injured, and several passengers reported killed. A steam-street-car collision in Cleveland, Ohio, killed an engineer and wounded several hands.

Ex-Governor Paul O. Hebert died in New Orleans yesterday, aged 68 years.

The National Health Inspector at Vicksburg yesterday took five sick off an upward-going New Orleans steamer, but could not stop the steamer, for which Memphis is on the lookout.

Constable Cochran arrested two men for fighting at a pic-nic, near New Castle, Ky., and killed a friend of theirs, Allen Thompson, who followed him with threats to the New Castle justice's office.

The unpaid census enumerators held a meeting in New York yesterday afternoon and organized for a movement on Washington. Secretary Schurz was roundly denounced for neglect to notice petitions for pay.

Geneva, New York, is stirred up with preparations for a great regatta to come off this week.

Chief Saporarie will succeed Ouray as head of the Utes.

Five Prussian officers have accepted appointments in the Turkish army.

General Roberts is marching upon Candahar, with his troops in good health and spirits. His force will soon be increased to 15,000 men.

Republicans of the 13th Congressional District of Pennsylvania have endorsed all the Greenback nominees, including Charles N. Brumm for Congress.

Gen. Jas. H. Williams has been nominated for Congress by the Mahone Readjusters' Convention of the 8th district of Virginia.

Dr. Charles T. Jackson died at Somerville yesterday, after an illness that had lasted seven years. He was 74 years of age.

THE W. C. COUP

Newly United Monster Shows!!

By every human being declared to be the biggest amusement enterprises on the face of our immense Earth!

Entrancing the eye, intoxicating the senses, enchanting the intellect, bewildering the brain, delighting the mind, enrapturing the whole system and fairly mesmerizing the very soul of man with serene ecstacy!

Eleven Stupendous Exhibitions!

Each one of which, when alone, was visited by twenty thousand enthusiastic men, women and children in all the great cities of our common country.

READ THE TITLES OF MY BIG SHOWS:

JAMES MELVILLE'S AUSTRALIAN CIRCUS!

WOOD'S FAMOUS NEW YORK MUSEUM!

COLVIN'S IMMENSE MENAGERIE!

STONE'S ORIGINAL INDIAN WARRIORS!

FRYER'S RENOWNED TRAINED DOGS!

THE NEW YORK AQUARIUM!

THE DYNAMO-ELECTRIC LIGHT SHOW!

RICHELL'S MAMMOTH FLYING MACHINE!

ROYAL JAPANESE CIRCUS!

And to top all, to astonish; and bewilder, petrify and paralyze every individual inhabitant with downright delight and wonder,

THE UNEQUALLED BRONCHO HORSES!

The identical golden born animals that performed in New York, Chicago, Boston, Cincinnati, Philadelphia, Washington and Baltimore for consecutive weeks before thirty thousand people each day! The most eloquent pen would utterly fail to even convey an idea of the acts these horses perform; of their grand military drill, see-sawing on a single plank, walking on stilts, finding objects hidden in the ground, rolling barrels up and down an inclined plane, jumping through blazing fire hoops, and executing the most intricate and difficult manœuvres with the ease, intelligence and precision of human beings. NETTLE, the champion leaping horse of the world, who clears a five-foot gate and six horses with the ease of a canary, is alone worth $50,000. But you must see to believe, of course.

Tens of thousands of glittering novelties never before travelled, but now coming to your town on and to be exhibited after the most attractive manner, with every accompaniment of splendor, under the

Three Trains of my Own Railroad Cars!

The Largest Canvass on Earth!

Myriads of rare, curious and wonderful living creatures of the ocean's depths and the forest's unreached latitudes, in never-ending variety, intensified in their extent by the rays of

HEAVEN'S IMMORTAL LIGHTNING!

Since the world was created, since the thought of man took form, since humanity became something from nothing, since the earliest recorded epoch, no such discovery has been chronicled as

THE GRAND ELECTRIC LIGHT!

You have all read or heard of it! It turns the densest blackest night into sun-light! It melts steel without heat! IT TURNS THE BLACK MAN INTO WHITE! It booms with a tremendous power all over creation! It burns brightly under water, and it gives the eternal hues of Paradise to every possible object, alive or inanimate, within a radius of three miles, bringing to the dreams of the drowsy an eternal and balmy sense of everlasting happiness.

But hark! another and even an equal novelty, ever born in captivity! A tiny, precious, winsome little atom of sea foam! A precious, trifling ocean infant, with luscious black eyes and shiny coat of fur! The baby of babies, over which ladies and children are driven into ecstacies! A sea-lion of twenty-seven pounds, and only three weeks old! See it! Fondle it! Tease it! Watch it nurse! See it play! Note its ponderous mother's affection for it! A wonder! A miracle! for not in the annals of Natural History was ever such another event recorded!

THE ONLY BABY SEA LION

THE MONSTER DEVIL FISH!

over fifty feet long, captured off New Foundland. This one feature raised a furor of excitement in New York City, and crowded the Aquarium building for forty weeks, with the finest class of people

It is an utter impossibility to enumerate one-half of my glorious attractions here, but you will see them all on TUESDAY.....AUGUST 31, 1880.

REPUBLICAN LAWLESSNESS.

The ascendancy of the Republican party in any section of the country, says the Louisville Courier-Journal, is marked by a disregard of law, an indifference to personal privileges and increased dangers to life and liberty. It is now a serious question with the conservative elements of this country how this lawless party may be restrained. Life is not safe in Pennsylvania or in Ohio. Murder, secret assassination, robbery and violence of every kind are detailed with a regularity that is sickening. The Republican party began its existence by proclaiming a "higher law," which absolved all of its followers from obedience to the law which is written and obeyed by others. The effect of the prevalence of such a doctrine can be traced in the social, in the political and in the commercial life of the North.

Fortunately the evil which would inevitably accompany the proclamation of such a doctrine has been mitigated and limited in its effect by the preaching of the Democratic idea of obedience to the Constitution and the laws, elevating in this way the standard of morality, both public and private. Yet many evils have accompanied Republican ascendancy, which it will take years to eradicate. These are shown by a weakening of the marriage tie, the multiplication of divorces and the increase of adultery. To the same baneful philosophy is due a weakened sense of individual moral responsibility, which leads to innumerable defalcations and forgeries, to bank robberies, to Credit Mobilier scandals, and to other crimes of a similar character. Each man becomes a law to himself; honesty is then only a comparative virtue, and perfect uprightness is an incredible thing.

A disregard of the rights of property leads to a disregard of life itself. Men's passions grow with what they feed upon, and one crime prepares the way for another. So in communities we have epidemics of crime. The character of these epidemics illustrates the teachings, political and moral, to which a community has been accustomed. In the North, throughout the States where sanctimonious and self-righteous Republicanism prevails, the crimes are of an especially brutal nature; they exhibit an utter disregard of the forms of law and a desire of the individual to take it into his own hands and administer it according to his own desire.

We have already referred to the horrible murder of a very respectable gentleman near Pittsburg for taking a bunch of grapes which were hanging on the public highway. It has in it all the elements of horror and brutality. Mr. BRYSON, a a harmless and half-demented gentleman, was seen taking a bunch of grapes. The woman who detected him set a ferocious dog upon him and called upon a number of workingmen who were taking their noonday meal to joy in the chase. BRYSON ran toward the river and into it until he got beyond his depth, when he turned back under the impression that his pursuers were satisfied. Again they turned the dog on him and he took to the water. Then his murderers began to stone him; he pleaded with them to let him alone, he could not swim, he was injured and bleeding. But the amusement was too exciting, and they refused to listen to him until at last they forced him farther into the river. A stone struck him on the head, stunned him, and he sank, crying for mercy. His murderers were satisfied, and so was the law when the Coroner's jury brought in a verdict "found drowned."

Something may be forgiven to passion, something even pardoned to vengeance or outraged honor; here was nothing but pure devilishness, and if one has to choose between a community where such crimes go unpunished and one where a man can murder another in a duel, there can be little hesitation on the part of any right thinking man.

This, it will be said, is an exceptional instance; on the contrary, it fitly illustrates an era of crime which in Pennsylvania dates from the close of the war. Now turn to another part of the country where the Republican party boasts of its great majorities—the Northwest—and we find assassination reduced to a fine art. On the night of August 24, Judge SHERMAN PAGE was seated in his library at Austin, Minn., when he was fired at by an assassin and dangerously, if not fatally, wounded in the neck and back. PAGE, we are told, is County Judge of the Tenth Judicial District, and as an extenuation of the crime it is said he was arbitrary and tyrannical on the bench. On the same night, a similar crime was perpetrated in Wisconsin, but the victim was not a judge. We are not informed what was his character and disposition. About 8 o'clock JACOB STOCKWELT, of the town of Walworth, Wisconsin, was called from his house by the barking of his dog, when he was shot by an unknown party. The charge entered the breast and shoulder and he died within a few moments.

Reference is made now to these horrible crimes in no spirit but one of anxiety and alarm. The law seems powerless to restrain or punish. Our Northern fellow-citizens are given over to the murderer and assassin, and they must protect themselves or they will go unprotected. It is a state of affairs most lamentable, most serious, most horrible. A different spirit must prevail before such crimes can be adequately punished. There must exist a love of law as well as a love of liberty. It is no answer to such statements that crimes are also committed in the South. One crime does not punish another.

CUMBERLAND'S REPRESENTATIVES

The Democrats of Cumberland county have nominated for the House of Representatives GEO. M. ROSE, Esq., and Mr. JAMES T. TOWNSEND. Mr. ROSE is a native of Cumberland and is now in his 33rd year. He was graduated at Chapel Hill in 1867 and adopted law as his profession. Mr. ROSE represented his county in the Legislature of 1876-'77. He was an active and punctual member and a prompt and ready debater. Mr. TOWNSEND is a Baptist minister and is fifty-five years old. He was born in Montgomery county and removed to Cumberland about seven years ago, and engaged in farming, in which he has been very successful. For the past two years Mr. TOWNSEND has been a member of the Board of County Commissioners. He is a straightforward sterling man and one worthy to represent any county.

COL. PAUL B. MEANS.

This gentleman, on Saturday last, was unanimously nominated for the House of Representatives by the Democrats of Cabarrus. Col. MEANS has represented his county before, in the Legislature of 1874-'75. In this Legislature he was a strong advocate of the Convention measure and introduced the only bill in the House for its call. Col. MEANS has, also, always been a warm advocate of the Fence Law and was its originator in Cabarrus county. He was graduated at the University in 1868 and licensed to practice law in 1870. Col. MEANS will make a good and valuable member. In fact the indications are that the next Legislature will be composed of material far above the average.

THE TWENTY-EIGHTH DISTRICT.

It devolved upon Cabarrus this year to name the Democratic candidate for Senator from the Twenty-eighth District, composed of the counties of Cabarrus and Stanly, and on Saturday she named Mr. J. M. W. ALEXANDER. Mr. ALEXANDER is one of the representative men of Cabarrus. He is a farmer, and is one of the most successful farmers and largest landowners in the county. He is a great-grandson of two of the signers of the Mecklenburg declaration—ABRAHAM and HEZEKIAH ALEXANDER. Mr. ALEXANDER is now about forty-eight years of age and is a man of fine intelligence and liberal views.

THE RADICALS say they "fought the war for the Union." BEN BUTLER said in his speech Saturday night, in Boston: "I marched to the Gulf with a New England division containing six thousand men, and there could not have been found five hundred men in that division who had ever voted any other than the Democratic ticket." And referring to the men who make the claim in his vicinage, he calls them the "stay-at-home Senators and Representatives, not one of whom did go to the war, even after Massachusetts Democrats showed them the way."

OUTRAGES in the Northern States daily increase in number and in barbarity. They are the natural results of Radical rule as they were its results here. We turned the Radicals out of office, replaced them with men who enforce the laws, and have no trouble. The North needs the same change, but will not get it until there is an improvement in the moral sentiment of its people, who seem to have no regard whatever for the rights of person or property.

JUDGE BUXTON "meant business" when he ran away from Governor JARVIS. A telegram from Elizabeth City says he refuses to divide time with any Democrat in the First District. The Captain of the Radical hosts takes refuge in a saltpetre bureau, just as the Confederate Captain did when summoned to the field, but this time it won't save his bacon.

THE CHICAGO Tribune says, and the New York Tribune thinks, that "a lie may be retold so often as to take on the appearance of truth." This explains the meaning of the daily outcry against "Census frauds" in the South.

NEW NORTH CAROLINA four per cent. bonds are quoted in New York at 76 bid.

DUPLIN COUNTY NOTES:—

Kenansville, August 28.—Our primary is being held to-day and the Democracy is out in full strength, and in fine spirits. We will make things lively for Greenbackism, independentism, and all other isms that may attempt to impede the march of our hopeful legions.

Our cotton has suffered greatly from excessive rains, but our corn crop is magnificent. Your experiment with Jute in our county promises to be a perfect success. It grows vigorously and is now eight or nine feet high. P.

Buncombe.

[Correspondence of THE RALEIGH NEWS.]

ASHEVILLE, August 27, 1880.

EDITOR NEWS:—The Superior Court for the county of Buncombe has now been in session near three weeks, and will close on Saturday next. The most important cases during the term, are the cases of the State against Wm. Richardson for burglary, on the criminal docket, and the case of W. W. Rollins against the eastern band of Cherokee Indians, on the civil docket. The former turned out to be nothing more than a case of larceny, for which the defendant was sentenced to the penitentiary for ten years, and the latter, though it has now been in process of trial for more than a week, has not yet fully developed itself, though it has proceeded far enough to demonstrate the fact that it is, in many ways, a novel suit. It is novel, first, from the number and nature of the witnesses connected with it, many of them being Indian witnesses who cannot talk English, but who have to be used through an interpreter. It is novel, second, from the contentious disposition of the counsel, and third from the fact that the cause is now, after the middle of the suit, being heard by eleven jurymen. When the cause had been in progress about four days one member of the jury asking to be excused, the counsel on both sides agreed to excuse him, and the case is now, as I believe almost without a precedent, proceeding with only eleven jurors in the box.

The nature of this suit is that W. W. Rollins sues on a contract executed to him by the Indians for the purpose of carrying on a suit instituted some years ago by said Indians against one Wm. H. Thomas, in which said contract the Indians agreed to give Rollins 20 per cent. of all that he might recover of said Thomas, whether by compromise or otherwise. After a reference the suit was finally compromised, and the amount of property recovered by Rollins under said compromise is differently estimated at from $50,000 to $125.000. The line of defence is that the chief who executed the contract had no power to execute a contract binding the band without the action of a council, and that John Ross, who executed the contract, was not the real chief. From present appearances, time alone or the end of the term will end this suit as it now exists, and the probability is that after the case is for the first time determined in this court, there are so many questions of law arising in the case to be ruled on by the court, that some of these holdings will be overruled in the Supreme Court, and that this long and tedious trial will have to be gone through with again just in the same manner that we now see.

The Grand Lodge of Knights of Honor has been in session at this place for several days past, but the proceedings closed last evening with a grand supper, given the visiting brethren by the members of the local lodge. Night before last the Grand Dictator, Mr. Klutts, of Salisbury (who is Democratic Elector in that District), delivered the annual address, one of the grandest efforts that I ever listened to on any subject.

Judge Gudger passed through town to-day en route for a more eastern district, where his courts begin on Monday next. The Judge, after a considerable amount of rest, is looking remarkably well, and no doubt feels buoyant for his undertaking.

Asheville is still alive with strangers, though it is estimated that as many as 100 left town on yesterday. Prominent among the visitors here is Mr. W. J. Best, better known as the Railroad Syndicate. What he has said while in our midst about the progress of the road I have not been able to learn, more than that he says the road will be immediately pushed forward, and that iron to lay the track from its present terminus to the Asheville depot is now on the road. Congressional Representation.

[Correspondence of THE RALEIGH NEWS.]

ROCKINGHAM, August 30.

EDITOR NEWS:—On the 20th of July, 1868, William H. Seward, Secretary of State, issued his certificate in due form, that the 14th amendment to the Constitution had been ratified by three-fourths of the Legislatures of the several States. Among them were the Legislatures of Alabama, Arkansas, Florida, Louisiana, North Carolina and South Carolina. At all events, it is to be so presumed, although the language employed by Mr. Seward is, "Newly constituted, and newly established bodies, averring themselves to be, and acting as Legislatures," of these States. The second section of the 14th amendment is mandatory that whenever the right of suffrage is abridged, in any State, for any reason, "except for participation in rebellion, or other crime, the basis of representation therein shall be reduced in the proportion which such male citizens shall bear to the whole number of male citizens, twenty-one years of age, in such State."

This amendment was really intended for the South, and was not expected to specially operate upon "the advanced civilization" of the North. It has so turned out, however, that Massachusetts and Rhode Island have abridged the right of suffrage for other causes than those named in the Constitution—causes which even Republican sophists would hardly call "crimes," and Congress is bound to see to it that their power in the House of Representatives is proportionally decreased.

Now, as Massachusetts and Rhode Island no doubt freely voted for the amendment, they ought not to complain, if they are required to bear all of its burdens. What they will be, I don't know, not having all the facts necessary to an accurate judgment. It is notorious that fewer children are born in the New England States, especially to the natives, than in the South. With us, in a warmly contested election, there will generally be about one vote for every six inhabitants. In New England, the proportion of voters is larger, and would, probably, be at least one in every five. Counting all males who are over twenty-one years of age, our proportion would be one in every five, and New England's one in every four of population. In 1878 the vote of Rhode Island was less than 25,000, which would give her a representative population less than the ratio for one member of Congress. She now has two. In 1878 Massachusetts gave less than 250,000 votes, which would make her representative population about 1,250,000, entitling her only to eight members of Congress instead of eleven. If the Constitution is carried out, as it is the sworn duty of Congress to do, the reduction in these two States will amount to four members of the House of Representatives, and this reduction will give to North Carolina an additional member, on account of her fraction of about 100,000 over eight times the ratio. What will Congress do? I say, stand by the Constitution. OTAC.

CLEVELAND POLITICS:—

King's Mountain, N. C., Aug. 28.—Quite a crowd assembled here yesterday in front of the Piedmont House to hear Col. Winston, of Caswell county, advocate the cause of the Greenback party. He denied positively any affiliation with the Republican party, and endeavored to show that the great issue between his and the other political organizations of this country was the currency question. The tendency of his remarks was evidently to array labor against capital. He told the laboring people that an opportunity now presented itself, through the Greenback party, for them to assert their rights at the ballot-box against bond-holders, monied men and centralization, and urged them to take his warnings home with them, to meditate over them at night, and urged them not to delay exercising their franchise against political parties, whose object was solely to promote the interests of capitalists.

He was replied to by Capt. W. T. R. Bell, a staunch old Democrat, whose speech was most effective in allaying any dissatisfaction which might have been produced against the Democratic party by the Colonel's remarks. The Captain showed conclusively that the main plank in the platform of the Greenback party was stolen from the Democratic platform. He charged them as disorganizers and being affiliated with the Republican party; he exposed Gen. Weaver's record for the past twelve years; that he had voted with the Republican party throughout. His speech was telling, and the crowd dispersed, satisfied that there was no necessity for a third political party in North Carolina.

DURHAM ITEMS:—

Durham, August 28.—This has been a week long to be remembered by the Durhamites; and, as one remarked, standing at a street corner, "yours is quite a little city, and looks very business-like to-day." Crowds of strangers thronged the principal thoroughfare, and scores of tobacco wagons rolled along the streets bringing the "weed in the leaf" to tempt the eager speculators and manufacturers as soon as the voices of Webb, or Barham, (our princes in the auction line) should call them to the exciting contest, either at Parrish & Blackwell's, or Reams's, the Reams, the H. A. M. X. Y. Z. man's warehouse. Surely Durham has been alive this week.

The Mount Zion Baptist Association, composed of some twenty-five churches in Orange, Chatham, Wake and Alamance counties, has just held a most pleasant and delightful session with the Durham Baptist Church. Several prominent lay-workers and ministers from adjacent Associations were present as visitors, all of whom by their wise counsel and cheering words of encouragement, gave an impetus to all the enterprises of the body. The genial countenance and thrilling words of the loved favorite of all hearts, Rev. Dr. T. H. Pritchard, President of Wake Forest College, were as beams of sunshine in all the work of the Association.

Durham can entertain almost any thing, at even short notice, whether it be a Baptist Association, Methodist Conference, Synod, Convention or what not; they are ever ready, so just come on. EIGHT.

Asheville.

[Rays shed there by the Concord Sun.]

Asheville on first sight, seemed like a small New York. The crowded streets, dashing turnouts and busy stirring people all gave it a very city like air. The hotels and boarding houses are jam full, but we managed to edge in at the Eagle hotel. Almost the first person we met was Major Blair, with his thumbs in his arm pits and that same serene unchanging smile on his face. The Major kindly consented to pilot us around and took us first to the court house, where Judge Gilmer was calling the sinners to the bar of judgment. One whole side of the house was filled with ferocious, hungry looking Cherokee Indians and they were a study to us. The chief was about 80 years old and still retained the garb of his grand-fathers. A band of feathers encircled his head, a bearskin served for his clothing and a belt encircling his waist contained a bowie, tomahawk and the scalp of some red headed man taken long years ago. We fastened a chew of tobacco on the end of a stick and passed it over to him as a token of peace. This little act of kindness made us friends at once and when we parted the old man had his name entered on our subscription book in these words: Oulwalla Man-of-the-fleeting-flint, Cherokee, N. C. Complimentary one year.

The Cherokees had come one hundred and twenty-five miles to Asheville, to attend court in a law suit about their lands, and the white lawyers were doing their level best, as usual, to cheat them. They numbered twenty warriors and three squaws, Oulwalla claims that it was his grand-father who caught Daniel Boone in a bear trap one night in Kentucky and tied him up to a tree, where he staid three months without eating a thing but his hat, six lead bullets and a piece of blanket.

The town was just like a crowded room with people sticking out of every door and window. When they get more people than they can hold they just shove the surplus down the hill and out of town. In the Fall, when the iron is laid, Asheville will have two depots, one on the east and the other on the north side of the town, and then it will begin to spread itself to the adjoining hills.

STATE POLITICAL NOTES:—

Davidson Democrats in Convention last week nominated for the Senate Capt. L. C. Hanes, Editor of the Lexington Exchange; for the Commons—P. L. Ledford and H. T. Phillips; Sheriff—H. H. Hartly; Register of Deeds—J. W. Finch; Treasurer—W. H. Hunt; Surveyor—W. H. Badgett; Coroner—Riley Leonard.

The Concord Sun says that Messrs. Barringer and Jenkins spoke in Cabarrus last week. "The General led off and was replied to by Major Dowd, then Jenkins spoke and Col. Means replied to him. Aunt Nancy fared very badly and Jenkins lost even his pin feathers."

The President and the Census.

[Special to the N. Y. Herald, 29th.]

A short time ago President Hayes was convinced, and it was so stated in these dispatches, that it would be necessary to have the census of South Carolina taken over again. Prominent Federal officials in the State represented to him that frauds of the most flagrant character had been openly perpetrated and the enumerators had been misled. It is reported that just before his departure for Ohio he discussed the subject with General Walker, Superintendent of the Census, who assured him if the usual tests applied to verify the correctness of the census of population revealed the slightest suspicion of fraud he would promptly acquaint him of the fact wherever he might be. In the meantime Secretary Schurz, of whose department the Census Bureau is a branch, would have returned to Washington, and he would be able to judge correctly of the demand for a renumeration. After Gen. Walker's visit to the Executive Mansion a Republican ex-member of Congress from South Carolina, who has the confidence of the President, called to urge a new census in the State. The President frankly told him that he did not believe there was the slightest foundation now for the alleged frauds, and, taking the vote for President in South Carolina in 1876 as a basis of calculation, being three years and seven months before the enumeration began, South Carolina ought to have in 1880 nearly, if not quite, a million inhabitants. The ex-Congressman departed bewildered at the President's statement, and it is said began to realize that there were too many corroborative facts sustaining the accuracy of the census returns to be disputed at this late day. The total vote of South Carolina in 1876 was 182,776, of which Mr. Hayes received 91,870 and Mr. Tilden 90,906. The proportion of the voting population is one to every five inhabitants, an average that holds throughout the country, and by which the population of any State can be correctly estimated when the full vote of that State is known to have been cast. According to this rule South Carolina, at the close of the centenial, even assuming that every vote in the State was cast, must have had a population of 915,000, and since then the increase claimed in three years and seven months is only 66,000. The Congressional vote that year, when three of the five members elected were Republicans, exceeded the Presidential vote, the aggregate being nearly 186,000, representing a population of 930,000. The Congressional vote of South Carolina polled in 1878, when not two thirds of the Republican vote of previous years was cast, was nearly 175,000. This view of the census seems to have escaped the notice of the critics, but not of the President, who, as above said, at one time thought it might be necessary for the credit of the Census Bureau to have the State of South Carolina re-canvassed, but who now plainly sees that the accuracy of the present returns cannot be very well questioned without charging that the Presidential vote of 1876 was manufactured for party purposes, and that the suspicions would be stronger against the Republican than the Democratic party.

The Irish Situation.

The present condition of affairs in Ireland forms the text of lengthy articles in nearly all the leading English journals of the 28th. It is barely possible that Fenian agents may have succeeded in obtaining minor positions of trust in different government establishments; but, owing to the vigilance that is being exercised, it is very certain that they have not been able to worm themselves into places where their efforts, even if successful, could be of the slightest consequence. The opposition to England in Ireland is of an entirely different character from that of open rebellion. The Times, in an article on the subject says:—"What we shall look for from Ireland during the coming autumn and winter will be the news of land meetings in abundance; of angry, seditious speeches, and of indignant popular votes. Beyond this, we are inclined to think, the disturbance will not proceed. The real danger is not from an organization on which the law can lay its hand and which the law will be strong enough to crush. The discontent, if it takes form at all, will show itself in a safer fashion than this. It is the occurrence of outrages upon individuals and the general disposition to shield offenders that Mr. Forster professes chiefly to dread, and against which he thinks it needful to make provision after a somewhat unusual fashion. How far the presence of a thousand well armed and well disciplined troops will act as a safeguard to individuals we will not venture to say. Agents may perhaps be shot at from behind hedges, and houses in out-of-the-way places burned or wrecked almost as freely as before. But one thing is absolutely certain. There will be no popular rising where there are troops in readiness to put it down. The Peace Preservation act may not be in force, but the Irishman's sense of the duty of self preservation will give as good security as we need ask for, against open rebellion at all events."

The Daily News says: "There is a floating sullen disaffection through many parts of Ireland. There is in some parts a population deeply in distress and bitterly resentful of the action of some of the landlords. There has lately been a fresh charter and sanction given by the House of Lords to the rigorous exercise of landlord power. There are symptoms of a revival of the Fenian organization in America and corresponding evidences of a congenial activity on this side of the Atlantic. Such is the state of things which the Government has to deal with during the coming autumn. Alarmists might infer worse results than time, we trust, has to show; optimists may, if they choose, assure themselves that there is nothing to be alarmed at. We have fairly pictured the State of Ireland as it is, and may leave those who read to form their conjectures for themselves as to the nature of the task imposed on Her Majesty's Government."

Pistols in Court.

A KENTUCKY MURDER TRIAL.

[By telegraph to the Herald 29th.]

LOUISVILLE, Ky, August 28, 1880.—No murder trial in the history of Kentucky has produced the same degree of intense excitement throughout the Commonwealth as that of the State vs. James H. Arnold for the murder of his brother-in-law, Robert Little, at Richmond, six months ago. Little was a member of the Legislature and quite popular. The two sisters, the wives of Messrs. Arnold and Little, were each worth about $80,000, and the settlement of a will giving them this money led to the fatal quarrel. Public sentiment at Richmond was so bitter against Arnold that a change of venue to Nicholasville, in another county, was necessary. At this latter place the trial began ten days ago and has continued every day since amid a great deal of excitement. It was shown that Arnold entered Little's office, alone, and armed with a revolver. Some incoherent words were heard, after which several shots were fired and Little was seen to fall, and in a moment more he was dead.

ORIGIN OF THE QUARREL.

It is said that in the settlement of the estate in which the two wives were legatees Arnold presented a note against the testator, which Little denounced as a forgery, naming Arnold as its author, and had threatened to take his life. Little was unarmed and a delicate man, who could have been easily overcome in a personal encounter with Arnold, even had not the latter used his weapons. It appears, therefore, that Arnold was in no immediate danger, and there was no testimony going to show that anything occurred in the office to cause Arnold even an apprehension of violence.

EXCITEMENT IN COURT.

Yesterday, after Congressman Phil. Thompson had spoken for the defence, Col. W. C. P. Breckinridge, the greatest orator in the South, spoke for the prosecution. United States Senator Daniel W. Voorhees, of Indiana, then entertained the largest audience ever assembled in Nicholasville Court House with a two and a half hours' speech. Commonwealth's Attorney Bronston then made the closing speech. When near the closing point he was talking about the note which has figured so conspicuously in the case. He alleged that Arnold was a forger, and if the note had ever been presented Arnold knew he would go to the Penitentiary. He was saying Arnold would not produce the note, when Senator Voorhees stepped close to him and said: "May it please the Court, there is not one iota of evidence to sustain the statement that the gentleman is now making." Bronston retorted, "I say there is." "And I say there is not," replied Voorhees. Some one then hurrahed at the top of his voice for Bronston. James B. Leavitt, a Madison county man, jumped to his feet and said, "It's a G—d d—d lie." At this time Ike Arnold, a brother of the prisoner, leaped over the railing with a cocked revolver in his hand and made for Bronston. A dozen or more pistols were then drawn and matters began to look serious. Mrs. Arnold jerked her husband under the table and shielded his body with her own. Mrs. Little fainted and was carried insensible to her room. One man jumped out of the window, twenty-five feet to the pavement, and, uninjured, was last seen running for dear life. Many ladies fainted. But for the few cool-headed men dozens would have jumped from the windows. Several gentlemen caught Ike Arnold and wrenched the pistol from him.

THE ARGUMENT CLOSED.

Weapons disappeared as suddenly as they came, and the Sheriff took the prisoner to the jury-room, while his brother Ike was taken to jail. The Judge ordered the court room cleared, and with no one present except the jury and the lawyers, Bronston finished his speech. Mrs. Arnold sat in her husband's lap eagerly watching the doors with a countenance I shall never forget. She feared for his life. Little's friends say it was a premeditated thing, calculated to make ground for the prisoner. By order of the Board of Trustees of the town the bar-rooms were closed for the night. After the adjournment of the court Bronston went to Senator Voorhees and asked him if anything personal was meant. Voorhees replied in the negative, and there the matter rests as to the two attorneys.

ARNOLD ACQUITTED.

To-day found Nicholasville as much excited as ever. The verdict was anxiously awaited. A majority of the people favored "guilty," but according to Louisville Post's special dispatch the jury returned a verdict of not guilty a little after noon, amid intense excitement in the court room. Arnold's friends shouted and surrounded him, while his wife covered him with her body to prevent his being killed. A strong guard took the prisoner to his room. Three or four hundred persons are now around the house, for what purpose is unknown. There is great uneasiness as to the safety of Arnold. The prosecuting attorney says it is the crowning stroke to the infamy, and that the prisoner's liberty is due to a set of religious fanatics.

A Mean Reb.

[From the Detroit Free Press.]

At the second battle of Bull Run a Michigan regiment, in making a change of position, came upon a Confederate soldier sitting astride of a Federal who was lying on his back. Each had a firm hold of the other, and neither could break the hold. As the troops came up the reb was taken in, and as the Yank arose he was asked how he came to be in such a fix.

"Why, I captured the blamed Johnny," he replied.

"Then how did he come to be on top?"

"That's what makes me so infernal mad!" shouted the bluecoat. "He captured me the same time I did him, and then he wouldn't toss up to see who had the bulge! He's no gentleman—no, sir, he ain't!"

The Dead Indian Chief.

[From the New York Herald, 29th]

Chief Ouray, of the Ute Indians, whose death on Friday at the Los Pinos Agency, is announced by telegraph, was one of the most remarkable of Indian statesmen since the death of Black Hawk and Red Jacket. He was born probably within the present territory of Colorado, some fifty-five or sixty years ago, when that region nominally belonged to Mexico, but was utterly unknown to white men. The important tribe of Utes, of which he was the most conspicuous individual, occupied an immense territory, embracing a large part of Utah (which derives its name from the tribe), and nearly all of Colorado west of the Rocky Mountains. The chief settlements of the Utes were upon the Colorado River and its upper tributaries, the Grand, Green, White, Gunnison and San Juan rivers. They are divided into several bands, under separate chieftains, the best known bands being the Uintah Utes in Utah, the White River Utes, the Southern Utes and the Uncompahgre Utes, the latter being the most numerous and the one to which Ouray belonged. The name is derived from the range of mountains which they inhabited, and this probably from the Spanish words un compadre, literally a fellow godfather, but colloquially meaning a good friend. Ouray became acquainted in early life with some of the Mexicans on the northern confines of New Mexico, traded with them and learned the Spanish language so as to be able to use it in conversation. Since the settlement of Colorado and Utah by Americans he came into close relations with many settlers and was known as the white man's friend. Many years ago, while hunting east of the Rocky Mountains, his only child, a boy twelve years old, was captured by the Sioux and is believed to be still living. This was the greatest grief of his life, and he repeatedly, and not unreasonably, appealed to the influence of the "Great Father" at Washington to secure his return. Since the opening of treaty relations with his tribe Ouray rapidly adopted many of the distinctive habits of civilization. Though the greater part of the Utes remained savages, he learned from the whites the methods of agriculture, established a farm of sixty acres, on which he raised good crops and cattle, and built a comfortable house and had it well furnished. Governor McCook, of Colorado, made him a present of a handsome carriage, and with a stylish team and a Mexican driver, he was able to "astonish the natives" by his magnificence. Being a natural diplomatist, he soon learned the secret of communicating his views by writing to the Indian Department or directly to the President, and used to sign his name to such letters as he caused to be written. He made at least three visits to Washington, being received with proper attention. His efforts to avert war last year in connection with the Meeker murder by the White River Utes, his appointment as a peace commissioner, along with one or two white men, his eloquent speeches on the grievances of his tribe, his visits to Washington last winter, and his appearance before the Committee on Indian Affairs, will be remembered by our readers. Quite recently he had been negotiating the sale of a large portion of the Ute Reservation in Colorado, but his premature death will probably render it difficult to accomplish that coveted object.

"General Taylor Never Surrenders."

[From the New York World 29th.]

It was on the evening preceding the battle and a number of officers had assembled and were holding a council of war in the General's tent; I mean General Taylor's. The absolute knowledge that the Mexicans would attack the next morning in overwhelming force was present to the minds of all, and though no shadow of fear threw its wing over the brave hearts of the warlike assembly, it was but natural that a feeling of intense anxiety should prevail. While this deliberation was in progress it was announced that a messenger from the hostile camp was without. "Show him in," said the American commander, and accordingly the Mexican envoy was ushered in, blindfolded secundum morem. The bandage being removed from his eyes, he proceeded to discharge his duty and his message—which in fact under the circumstances was only to be expected—that the American General must be aware of the overwhelming odds arrayed against him, that resistance was hopeless, and that he was invited by General Santa Anna, by a timely surrender, to avoid the useless expenditure of blood which must be the result of a refusal to do so. All this was delivered in Spanish, which Taylor did not understand, and he stood, chafing with irrepressible impatience, while the stately sentences rolled from the lips of the envoy. "What does he say, Major Bliss, what does he say?" the General constantly inquired during the progress of the demand, his eyes flashing and his lips quivering with an impatience which he was at no pains to conceal. The story done," Major Bliss translated it word for word to his restless superior. Whereupon the General flew into the most appalling rage, and turning to the astonished Mexican, he blurted out (he was wont to stutter frightfully when excited):—

"W-w-ill you just t-t-t-tell General Sant-t-ta Anna, f-f-rom me to g-g-go to hell." There was a momentary pause and Bliss gravely questioned: "Do you desire me, General Taylor, to send that answer?" "N-n-no, sir; you may p-p-put it in p-p-proper language."

"Tell General Santa Anna," said Bliss in Spanish, turning to the Mexican officer, "that General Taylor never surrenders," an answer as tame and commonplace as he could well have hit upon, and utterly lacking the spirit of Taylor's rough but gallant defiance.

I think that Major Bliss must have had in mind at the moment the historical answer of Cambronne at Waterloo, when summoned to surrender. "The old Guard never surrenders," says the polite and fastidious Cambronne of history, but the fierce Cambronne of military tradition returned a reply, which, if not so refined, was infinitely stronger and more expressive. Such is the reliance to be placed in history. SENEX.

City and County Notes:

Not hot enough for you?

Hon. M. W. Ransom is in the city.

The brass band was out serenading last evening.

The Justices had civil business only yesterday.

The Rifle Club is practising for the match on the 1st.

Gov. Jarvis left on his western campaign yesterday afternoon.

For the first time within the recollection of man no court is in session in Raleigh.

The Life Insurance Company of Virginia paid up yesterday $75.50 tax on its receipts for the last six months.

The Raleigh Gun Club will shoot at Pullen's this afternoon, and the Rifle Club will sweat at the rock quarry range.

Tickets to Coup's Circus may be had on the day of the show, September 3rd, at F. H. Heartt's Drug Store at a small advance on regular rates.

Old Probs and the weather had a dog-fall yesterday. The rising thermometer he said clear over the house, but any partially cloudy weather was not to be seen.

Chief Justice Smith had a young man from Richmond, Va., named G. M. Lindsay before him, yesterday afternoon on a writ of habeas corpus. The hearing of the case will be completed at 9 o'clock this morning.

We return thanks for an invitation to the second annual fair of the North Carolina Industrial Association. The first fair of this Association was a grand success, and we hope this one will be no less so. We really regard this Association as of great value to the colored people, and now as in the past, give it our hearty good wishes. The next exhibition begins on September 27th and continues one week.

TREASURY NOTES.—Old bonds to the extent of $500 forgot that the Doctor was in Randolph and presented themselves for exchange yesterday. They were taken in and duly cared for by the stalwart Chief Clerk and the jolly Teller.

Messrs. E. Courtney Jenkins & Co., of Richmond, Va., found that the payment of $100 was essential to the introduction of their wares to North Carolina's merchants, and they paid it promptly.

BEFORE THE MAYOR.—Yesterday morning the Mayor's brow grew grave and his eye grew stern as it gazed upon the personal features of John Lockhart, Alf. Flowers, Chas. Lockhart and John Turner, who were arraigned before him on a charge of stealing $165 from Mr. James Sorrell. Darker yet grew that grewsome frown as the damning evidence was brought out until when the end came the case as to John Lockhart and Flowers was complete and in default of $200 bail they joined the choir, not of angels, but of Wake county jail. Charles Lockhart and Turner were discharged for lack of evidence.

The Fire King Conquered.

Last night at 11:30 o'clock the alarm of fire was given, caused by the burning of the new residence in process of erection for Dr. W. J. Hawkins, on the corner of Blount and Jones streets. The fire broke out on the inside of the house on the third story on the southeast corner, and by the time the engines were on the ground the inside of the cupola in front was filled with fire. The fire companies were all on the ground as soon as could have been expected, and all did good service, and this time their efforts were successful. By degrees the fire paled under the streams from the nozzles of the Rescue, Phœnix, and Victor companies, and at 12:55 the fire was out and two members of the Bucket Company had been detailed to watch the remainder of the night.

ACCIDENTS.

There are no serious accidents to report. A bucket falling from the roof cut quite a gash in Mayor Manly's forehead over the left eye, but he was not much hurt and went on giving orders as calmly as if he had Manly's Battery with him still. The only other casualty was to Mr. Geo. W. King who fell down a stair but was not hurt.

FUN AT THE FIRE.

There never was a fire at which something funny did not happen, and in this case, as the damage does not exceed $500, we may be pardoned for giving some of them. Before the fire got fairly under way one young man plunged through the fence and two nails by preconcerted action caught each one leg of his trousers and split them so that all he needed to make him look like a Mexican caballero was a serape and a sombrero, but as he did not have them he looked like a very forlorn American. About this time the Rescue got its stream on and about the time it did the hose split and about a dozen of the wounded went off to hunt bath towels. Then a little African about three feet high got tangled in a box bush and couldn't get out. He stood it very well until a bucket half full of water fell from the top of the house and struck the ground within a foot of his head, and then that darkey was happy, well maybe he was not happy, but he was interested. His yell and his motions showed that. What finally became of him no one knows, but one thing is certain, if his mammy found him she had to hang him out to dry.

Sub-Electors.

ROOMS OF DEMOCRATIC STATE EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE,
RALEIGH, August 30, 1880.

The following Sub-Electors are this day appointed for their respective counties and Senatorial Districts:

H. A. London, Jr., Esq., for Chatham.
T. T. Mitchell, Esq., for Franklin.
Capt. W. H. Day, for Halifax.
George W. Dillam, Esq., for Jackson.
G. W. Koonce, Esq., for Jones.
R. C. Strudwick, Esq., for Orange.
Bruce Williams, Esq., for Pender.
H. A. Foote, Esq., for Warren.
S. S. Smith, Esq., for Gates.
C. A. Cooke, Esq., for the Nineteenth Senatorial District.
Theo. W. Poole, Esq., and Hon. W. T. Caho, for the Second Senatorial District.

County and Senatorial Executive Committees are requested to forward recommendations for Sub-Electors at once.

By the Committee.

OCT. COKE, Ch'mn.
J. J. LITCHFORD, Secretary.

North Carolina Stock.

The next Fair will, in one feature at least, be a big success if no stock is brought outside of the State. We have enough of our own to be worth coming to see. We have already spoken of two of the trotters that will go for honor and pelf, and we have also seen some thoroughbreds that are worthy of notice.

At Tarboro we made a morning call on Mr. Hasard-Short's magnificent bay, Outcast. He was just finishing his toilet and when led out the sun's early rays were reflected from his satin coat as from a mirror. Outcast is a son of Leamington and Oriana by Duncalion out of Nina by Boston and is a beauty. His legs are as clean now as a two-year-old's and he is horse all over. Possibly there is a little too much day-light under him, but all the Leamingtons have this and it takes a terribly fast streak of lightning to catch some of them.

At Weldon we found Mr. H. B. Pope with four young things who, under his tutelage, were learning the step for the ball. All of them are by that grand old horse Red Dick, by Lexington out of Alabama, by Brown Dick. The first stall on the right holds a bay colt out of Mary Long, who was by Warminster out of May Day, by Tar River, out of Hawkins' Fashion, by imported Trustee, Fashion's sire. Here is richness for you. Mary Long was as game a race nag as ever looked through a bridle; if she ever collared a competitor she beat him. Her sire Warminster was a fine racer himself and his colts ran until they were hammered to pieces. May Day was never trained, but Tar River was the hardest bottomed horse of his day. As the elder Doswell said when he beat Fanny Washington, "the d—d black ram can't run fast enough to tire himself." If this colt don't run he goes back on his family.

The next stall is occupied by a long raking bay filly out of May Day with a wonderful look of Hatteras about her. Horses run in all shapes, but some shapes they are bound to run in and this filly has one of them.

The next stall holds a son of Anice who was by Bill Arp, out of May Day or the Queen by Planet, we have forgotten which. We did not notice this colt so particularly as the others, but the Planet cross through Bill Arp is very valuable; if it is doubled why so much the better.

These colts are all three year olds and all unnamed, the only thing in the stable yet christened being the two year old Judge Bynum. This is a bay colt by Red Dick out of Mary Amis who was by Cock Robin by Planet out of the Queen by Planet, and both Cock Robin and the Queen were out of the old Trustee mare. Here's the double Planet cross, and it makes when joined with the other noble strains in his Honor's pedigree a race-horse certain. This colt is a full brother to Capt. Peebles' Jno. Dunham, who could have run to the Rocky Mountains, and to the big little sorrel Fourth of March who could, as a two-year old, when in the humor, breeze by Swannanoa, but whose temper eventuated in his death at that age.

These are all promising colts, but we must be pardoned if we give preference to the filly against the judgment of some who ought to know. As we have said, she has a wonderful look of Hatteras about her, and we remember yet how, when Hatteras was first broken, we were laughed at for saying he was the best race-horse ever raised in Occoneechee; we remember how, after Hatteras found his way to the front, nothing headed him until he broke down, and how in the nine races he won over such horses as Courier and Jim Bell and Starlight he proved himself as game as he was fast; and we remember, too, the day when irretrievably broken down he was led off the track for the last time; but that is too sad to tell about.

These are not all the thoroughbreds the State can show. Down by the sea Arcturus and Steel-Eyes lord it in the stables of Avoca. Hatteras runs no more, but he still lives, and the dignity of age takes nothing from his grandeur of appearance. Near Charlotte, Abd-el-Koree recalls the triumph of the day when he wrote on the blackboard the figures for four miles, which no three-year-old has ever been able to wipe out.

Down on the Roanoke Red Dick and Cad tramp on the old "race-horse region" and nearer still to our heart Austral, the son of Australian and Coral, is in this very town. He will feel no more his rider's knees clip the pig-skin close as the grand arched loin lifts horse and rider over five feet of stiff timber or sends them like a bolt from a catapult over the yawning water-jump, but to our eyes he is the loveliest thing ever wrapped in horse hide, and others, good judges, think so too.

WAITING DIRECTIONS.—When Miss Mary D. Bryan receives the letter now seeking transmission through the Raleigh postoffice she'll be one of the most surprised young ladies in the world, for it is directed to Kill Quick and as no office has that name, she will be killed by old age before that letter reaches her. And there too is the letter directed to "Mrs. Demdeaner Forte, Engerwere postoffice, Answore county, N. C." That letter's bewildered, so to speak; it don't know where to go and if Mr. Demdeaner Forte started that letter he'll see sights when he gets home, if he ever finds the way there, for not "writing to me love when far away."

What the Press Says.

Circus notices in advance of the show are looked on by most people with suspicion, but Coup's Circus has been to and left Richmond, and the State of that city speaks of it as follows:

[Richmond State, of August 28th.]

Both exhibitions of Coup's Monster Show were largely attended yesterday, the crowd at night being the largest ever seen at a circus in this city. The tent over the arena was the largest tent ever raised in Richmond, and the crowd under it was variously estimated at from five to ten thousand souls. At 7 o'clock, when the doors were opened, the people poured in, and by half-past 7 all the seats were taken. Thousands were turned away unable to gain admission, but the money was promptly refunded to those who had purchased tickets at Johnston's in advance. Those who got to the grounds too late last night to gain admission have the opportunity of attending to-day, as two performances will be given as usual.

As to the show, taken altogether, it surpasses any that we have ever seen here, and, of course, it gave great satisfaction. The zoological department was excellent, compromising specimens of most of the rare animals found in zoological gardens, and the circus was splendid. There were several novel performances, and the conventional acts, such as the trapeze, the tumbling, and the riding, were far above the average. Mlle. Belmont eclipses all aerial artistes. her trapeze swinging being the height of daring. Miss Katie Stokes is a most dashing bareback rider, and is grace itself; while Mr. Watson, the English equestrian, is perhaps the most wonderful success in his line in America.

The concluding act, done by the tribe of Iroquois Indians, was exciting to the utmost degree, and was a fitting finale to the excellent entertainment.

The question is frequently asked if Coup's show is owned by a company. The show is not owned by a company, Mr. Coup, the general manager, being the sole owner. He is a very wealthy man and has made all of his money in the show business.

When we see a paper like the State talking in this way we begin to think the show is really a big thing, and beg leave to remind folks that it will be here next Friday.

The Girls at Long Branch.

[Cincinnati Enquirer Letter.]

The thoroughly fashionable girl, as represented at this capital of frivolity, looks as if she had stepped out of a picture painted in the middle of the last century. She droops her shoulders, represses her bosom and humps her back until she is interestingly shaped like a consumptive in the stages next preceding death. Her shoulder-blades show like rudimentary wings through the thin muslin of her white dress, and her hair is arrayed with angelic simplicity. Over her shoulders and chest is a fichu like the neckerchief familiar in the standard portrait of Martha Washington. Her skirt is gathered in at the waist and hangs as straight and plain as an old-fashioned petticoat to within six inches of the ground. The only suggestion of modern earthliness is the glimpse of gay stockings underneath. There are exceptions, however, to this general affectation of simplicity. A full-blooded brunette, with a face of scarlet and amber, and a form as pliant and sinuous as a well-fed cat's, wears rich, dark costumes. One of her dresses makes every man turn his head to look; yet it really makes no extensive exhibition of her person. The sleeves are slashed at several points from her rounded wrist to the top of her plump shoulder. Spaces of her smooth warm skin are thus left bare, and with a wonderfully alluring effect. If her arms were wholly nude they would gain no more than a passing glance; but these spots of exposure are just enough, as I plainly see, to fix the male eye upon her. She is well aware of this and has a way of shrugging her shoulders that brings dimples to the precise places that are uncovered. The expression of unconsciousness which she simultaneously assumes is worth going a mile to see.

WAIF:—

Go up thou bald head; go up thou bald head; was the way the boys put it in ancient times when they fell in with Elisha. We have changed all that. The polite reporter of the New York Sun who interviewed Thomas Hughes on his arrival, in place of describing him as bald-headed, writes: "The fine outlines of his head are not hidden by any growth of hair, except at the sides and back, where there is a fringe of iron gray." These are more tenderer words, as the Elder Weller would say.

This Morning's Telegrams.

English Grain Prospects.

LONDON, August 30.—The Mark Lane Express, in its review of the British grain trade during the past week, says three weeks of fine weather has proved of the utmost value to all the grain crops, and greatly forwarded harvest operations. The absence of the bright sunshine, however, has made this work rather slow in the later districts, whilst in the southern and southeastern districts the bulk of it has been completed. Complaints continue of mildew in wheat. Some early threshings are not very satisfactory. A quantity of new English wheat has already been marketed in London and the country, and samples show much better quality than last season's. Prices ranged from 44 to 48s. for white, 43s. to 45s. for red. The demand for foreign, although slightly improved by light shipments cabled from America, has been mostly inactive and Monday's decline has not been recovered. It would be unwise to predict that prices have reached the lowest point, as the period is approaching when imports are at the heaviest, but the tendency at the close of the week was rather to assert a downward movement. Barley had slow sale. Oats were fairly active. Maize was occasionally 3d. higher. Sales of English wheat for the week were 2,229 quarters at 44s. 1d., against 17,759 quarters at 48s. 1d. for the corresponding period last year. Imports into the kingdom for the week ending August 21st, were, wheat 1,997,066 cwts.; flour 186,147 cwts.

Murders and Suicides.

August 30.—S. T. Morgand, of Cincinnati, suicided by shooting in Cleveland, Ohio.

Bobert Barton fatally stabbed Geo. Larkin at St. Paul, Minnesota.

John Duffy shot Thomas Conner at Chester, Pa.

One negro killed another at a picnic at Shannondale, Mo., with a pistol and was in turn killed by a deputy sheriff with a shot gun.

Mary Lou Campbell, the victim of a mock marriage which caused her ruin, committed suicide at Atlanta by taking twenty grains of Morphine.

French Liberty.

PARIS, August 30.—The newspapers announce that the police will to-morrow visit the Jesuit scholastic institutions throughout France to execute the decrees against unauthorized congregations at the Jesuit establishment. In Dijon to-day the police found only one regular priest, who is a new director of the establishment, and one Jesuit, representing the Society in its civil capacity as proprietor of the building. It is believed that the police will find all of the establishments of the Society similarly evacuated.

The Pope has assented to a proposal that a portion of the French Jesuits shall form a society for the propagation of the faith in Central Africa.

Kissing and Making Friends.

NEW YORK, August 30.—The Irving Hall Democracy this afternoon sent to Tammany Hall a series of resolutions looking to and proposing a conference to adjust existing differences. The communication was responded to by Tammany, who appointed a committee to confer with a similar one from Irving Hall Wednesday evening.

The Wheat Crop.

CHICAGO, August 30.—A careful examination of the condition of the wheat crop in the great wheat belt on the line of the Northern Pacific railroad has been made for the Associated Press. The reports that the crop was in danger in consequence of wet weather were unwarranted.

On occasion of the expected birth of an heir to the Spanish throne, the government will grant amnesty to the Cuban insurgent leaders now imprisoned in Spain.

The European Powers will not invite Turkey to participate in the proposed naval demonstration. They will invite her only to furnish military assistance if required.

Prince Bismarck went to Pottsdam yesterday, and visited the Prince and Princess of Bulgaria, who returned the visit at Berlin to-day, remaining some time at the residence of the Chancellor.

A colored widow in Lexington, Ky. who is now drawing a pension of $8 a month from the government, recently rejected an offer of marriage, remarking, by way of explanation: "If I does, de gubment will take my penshun 'way, an' nary nigger in Kaintuck is wuff $8 a month to me."

Another Yankee Outrage.

NEW YORK, August 29.—George C. Harward, a young and promising lawyer, and a friend named Peter J. Larkin, were attacked and stabbed by a party of roughs in Brooklyn last night while protecting two women from insult. Mr. Harward spent the evening with some friends, and between 1 and 2 o'clock started for his home, at No. 479 Dean street, in company with Larkin. At Bond and State streets they observed two women, who were being followed by three rough-looking characters, of whom the women appeared to be afraid. Harward and his friend spoke to them and they walked along together until reaching Atlantic and Bond streets, where the three men who had followed them came up, and Harward said: "What are you following us for?" Only a few words passed when blows were exchanged, and while Harward and Larkin defended themselves with their fists their assailants drew knives and slashed away at both. Harward was stabbed to the heart, and, running a few feet, threw up his hands and fell dead on the pavement. Larkin hastened forward to assist his friend, but when stooping to raise him found that he, too, had been stabbed and was bleeding profusely from a wound in the neck. The women proved to be Eliza A. Burke and Jane Bond. They acknowledged calling upon the two men for protection, but say they did not see the stabbing. Mr. Harward leaves a wife and two children.

GENERAL NEWS ITEMS:—

Hon. Robert McClelland, formerly Governor of Michigan and Secretary of the Interior under President Pierce, was paralyzed at Detroit on Saturday.

At Milwaukee, Wis., Saturday, fifty-four young women took vows in the Order of School Sisters of Notre Dame. On the 15th fifty-six novices took the same vows. Some are from Canada.

In Brooklyn, N. Y., Saturday evening, James Morgan and John Devon quarreled about the merits of the jig-dance, when Morgan drew a knife and fatally stabbed Devon. Morgan was arrested.

At Maysville, Ky., Friday night, John Yates, colored, was shot and killed in a drunken quarrel by James Hasson. Wm. Yates, brother of deceased, stabbed Hasson in a quarrel a few weeks ago.

A new company has been formed in Paris with a capital of 10,000,000 francs to establish factories for making sugar from beet root in various parts of the province of Quebec, each factory to cost from $100,000 to $120,000.

In a thunder storm at Providence, R. I., Saturday, the First Presbyterian Church and two or three other buildings were struck by lightning. At Miffin, Pa., while John Welles and family were at dinner lightning struck the house, and Welles and four of his children were severely burned.

A shocking accident occurred on the Lowell and Lawrence railroad on Saturday night, by which five youths lost their lives. The Caledonian picnic was held during the day at Smith's Grove, in the town of Andover, where these young men had been participating. Either for want of money or for sport, they contrived to clamber on the top of a passenger car in the train which left Lawrence at 7 30 p. m. When the train reached Sprague's Bridge, two miles from the city, in the town of Teaksburg, all five were swept off and killed.

The Chief of the Bureau of Statistics, in his first monthly statement for the current fiscal year of the imports and exports of the United States, says:—"The excess of exports of merchandise, stated in specie values, was as follows: Month ended July 31, 1880, $13,718,303; month ended July 31, 1879, $9,644,349; seven months ended July 31, 1880, $44,878,178; seven months ended July 31, 1879, $124,680,960; twelve months, ended July 31, 1880, $171,754,247; twelve months ended July 31, 1879, $263,643,264. A Desperate Affair.

[From the Little Rock Gazette.]

The forgiving spirit of the colored people is a distinctive characteristic of that race. The most violent animosities may be cooled by the wave of the fan of concession, and the hottest fire of hatred can be extinguished by a drop of the milk of human kindness. Sandy Horn, a colored man, known in the neighborhood as Buck Horn, some time ago met the wife of One-eyed Nicholas. Mrs. One-eyed Nicholas was a "likely 'oman," but her attractions, at least for Buck Horn, consisted in a lack rather than in an abundance of the Mrs. Cæsar material. Buck Horn hung around Nicholas's house while the old man was away. Finally he and Mrs. One-eyed Nicholas ran away and came to Little Rock and opened a kind of a boiled cabbage eating house. For the first few days after the elopement, old Nicholas surrendered himself to grief. "Ise lost de 'oman of my bosom," he said. "De debil hab tuck the rib what God had gin me." At last the old man threw aside his grief and meditated revenge. He took an oath that he would kill Buck Horn. "I'se nebber gone back on an oath," he said to a neighbor, "an' when I meets Buck Horn he mus' die de death ob de ongodly. Happy will be de time when I sets de soles of my feet in dat 'onory man's blood." Next day old Nicholas came to the city. He brought a large pistol and a brier hook with him. Ascertaining the locality of his mortal enemy, he went to the house, and, without revealing his identity, was admitted by a boarder. Seated on a bench, he awaited the appearance of Buck Horn. After a while the man came. Nicholas sprang up, shut the door and locked it.

"Face to face wid de debil," exclaimed Nicholas, cocked his pistol and raising his brier hook. "I hab a vow to take yer life, an' fore de Lord I'se a gwine to do hit."

"Look heah, Nick," said Buck Horn, "guv a man some sorter show."

"Say your prars."

"Nick, I doan want no truck wit yer."

"In de name of de chuch I stermi-nates dis sinner." The old man leveled his pistol.

"Nick, doan yer remember dat Kentucky whisky we drunk dat day at de ferry?"

"Yes," said the old man, lowering his pistol; "yer got any moah?"

"Yes, I is."

"Whar's yer bottle?"

"Heah hit is," and Buck Horn took a bottle from his pocket, handed it over and remarked: "Hep yerself."

The old man drank and said, "Genny-wine 'possom hollow."

The two men sat down. "Let me put yer pistol ober heah. Put de hook over in de corner. Dar now, we's fixed. How's eberything down de country? What! yer ain't a goin' so soon, is yer? Wish yer stay to dinner."

"Gimme some more ob de 'possom hollow. Dat stuff makes me feel like whistlin.' Come out and see me. Doan forget de jug."

The daily increasing use of Olive Oil as an article of food, is attracting public attention more and more to the necessity of caution in buying, so as to get a pure and genuine article. The advertisement of Mr. E. J. Hardin in to-day's paper, advertising the famous "Francesconi" brand of Oil, imported direct in hermetically sealed cans, and bottled here by himself, is worth the attention of all who like salads and salad oil.

It can't be found—A better Cracker than the Lunch Milk Biscuit, 15c. per lb. and always fresh.
E. J. HARDIN.

Wanted—A First-class fast Harness-maker— one that can cut and fit in all the branches. None but first class need apply. References required.

Financial Chronicle Market Reports.

NEW YORK, August 28, 1880.

The cotton receipts of last week were 21,123 bales; since September 1st, 4,916,971, an increase over 1879 of 468 565 balss. The exports were 8,788 bales; since September 1st, 3,858,508, an increase of 437,254 bales. The stock, 131,320 bales, an increase of 64,9 2 bales. The visible supply, 1,307,123 bales, an increase of 278,622 over 1879, 167,908 over 1878, and a decrease of 409,677 from 1877. Of this supply, 763,082 American, of which 160,083 in the United States. The receipts at the interior ports, 6,021; an increase over 1879 of 4,474 bales. The interior stocks, 27,762, an increase of 20461 bales. The plantation receipts, 19,021; in 1879, 4,713; in 1878, 16,378 bales; since September 1st, 4,958,555; in 1879, 4,457,284; in 1878, 4,379,410. The price at Liverpool on Friday was 7 3-16; in 1879, 6 13-16; in 1878, 6 11-16; in 1877, 6d. The week's weather was fairly favorable.

Speculation in futures was brisk at New York last week, but closed at lower prices. The sales were 543,800 bales. Sp ts advanced, and the sales were 7,288 bales, of which 3,764 for export, 3,484 for consumption, 40 for speculation.

New York's general business last week was active, unusually so for the last half of August. The volume of business with many houses exceeds the most active periods of previous seasons. Prices are low and profits not large. Probably the whole trade of the country was never on a more solid basis.

There were no features of interest in the breadstuff market last week, more than are shown by regular price quotations.

In dry goods at New York last week there was a steady demand for most descriptions of seasonable goods at first hands, and though selections were mostly restricted to moderate-sized parcels, transactions were so numerous that the volume of business was by no means unsatisfactory. There was increased animation in all branches of the jobbing trade, and a large distribution of staple and department goods was made by most of the leading firms. Southern retailers are now largely represented in the market, and they are operating more freely than for some time past; but without the least tendency toward speculation.
